BBHS Invites You to Be Part of Our History

This spring, as we adjust our lives to stay at home due to Covid-19, we are establishing new routines and rituals, having experiences that we'll remember for a long time to come. At the BBHS, our archives contain numerous letters, diaries, scrapbooks, photographs and albums that document what our past residents went through during difficult times and how these dramatic events changed where we live, and the way we live our lives. Today, during this unprecedented time, you can help write history by sharing your unique experiences amid the pandemic, a time when community spirit is so important. And we will add them to Bellport's archives for future residents.

Examples of personal experiences we're looking for:

STORIES, PHOTOS, SCRAPBOOKS, DRAWINGS, ART WORK, SHORT VIDEOS

HOW TO HELP:

Please share your coronavirus experience with us so future generations can understand what this time was like. Let us know what you'd like to share with us at president@bbhsmuseum.com or director@bbhsmuseum.com. You can email your stories and photos or we can arrange drop off of artwork via email or at BBHS headquarters.

We miss visiting with you and look forward to getting together at BBHS soon. In the meantime, please stay safe and healthy.

Sincerely

Joan Kaelin, President

Tricia Foley, Director
